Bart's Potato Company is a family owned company, based in Belgium, founded by Mr. Jose Lamaire in 1966, who was initially dealing in the fresh potato trade. From a small trading office, the company has become one of the largest packers/exporters of fresh potatoes in Europe. Bart's Potato Company has also acquired a wide experience in sourcing top quality raw materials to the potato processing industry, including to several frozen French fries factories.

With Bart and Bram Lamaire, the passion for potatoes has continued from father to sons. Being very close to the processing industry for many years, it was a natural evolution for the company to enter into potato processing world and the first frozen French fries line was started in January 2015.

Today Bart's Potato Company exports quality frozen French fries to more than 60 countries worldwide. The company's vision is for excellent service with tasty products, sustainable growth, customized solutions and applying the family values in the business. We produce top quality frozen French fries, available in different cut sizes and grades packed into Bart's branded bags. We also offer a private-label service, giving flexibility to customers in the retail and food service channels around the world. We look forward to serving you.
